Media Storm is looking for a multimedia intern for spring 2010. This is great for people who want to be a digital journalist. This internship will put you in touch with a cutting edge environment as you expand/apply your skills. Application deadline is Oct. 15. For details, visit: http://mediastorm.org/blog/?p=1276 If you have questions, please contact Media Storm directly, info@mediastorm.org ~ (646) 344-1290~ 55 Washington St, Suite 420 Brooklyn NY 11201 USA

New York Times Student Journalism Institute is looking for January interns. Applications must be postmarked by Oct. 24 for this opportunity offered by The New York Times to student members of the National Association of Hispanic Journalists. For 11 days, from Jan 2 through 12, at the University of Arizona in Tucson you have a chance to work one-on-one with journalists from one of the world’s most prestigious publications. To apply, go to http://www.nytimes-institute.com/miami09/wp-content/uploads/2008/12/tuscon2010_app.pdf

The Washington Post is seeking interns with strong skills and interest in online journalism. Prospective interns must be students currently enrolled in a degree program, and, if selected, must submit one of the following on or before the first day of the internship: 1) documentation showing that academic credit is being received (i.e. a copy of the course registration), or 2) a letter from a professor, department head, or academic advisor stating that the internship significantly contributes to the student’s current degree program, or 3) a letter from the school stating that the internship is part of a work-study or independent study program. Applications for Spring Semester starting in January must be received by Nov. 1. Please send Resume, Cover Letter and materials specified below for the specific job you are seeking. Materials should be sent by email to the address below. Please specify in Subject Line which job listed below is your first choice. This will improve your chances. Email applications or questions to: springintern@washpost.com

The Washington Post offers 12-week, paid reporting internships on the Local, Financial, Sports, Style and Editorial desks, as well as internships for Visual Journalists, Web Producers and Web Designers. It has a heavy Web and multimedia focus and is open to college juniors and seniors, as well as grad students. The program has served as a launching pad for quite a few students, many of whom work today in the Post newsroom and others. The Post requires at least one previous professional internship. The application can be located at www.washingtonpost.com/intern.

The Houston Astros are now recruiting for Spring 2010 Internships. These are full time internship opportunities and are designed to give students hands on experience of what it is like to work for a major league team. They are unpaid internships and require that students receive college credit for their experience. The Astros also offer a scholarship each semester to one of the eligible students chosen to be a part of the program. The Houston Astros Internship Scholarship Program has been established to increase opportunities for undergraduate students of limited financial means to be able to complete full time internships with the club. More information about the scholarship program can be found at http://baseballjobs.teamworkonline.com/teamwork/r.cfm?i=25894. Apply for internship until November 20th or until all internships are filled: http://houston.astros.mlb.com/hou/downloads/scholar_letter.pdf.
The N.C. Administrative Office of the Courts is seeking a self-motivated and energetic individual to support its communications office. This individual should maintain a positive attitude, enjoy handling multiple priorities and have a professional approach to customer service. The internship position calls for attention to detail, excellent oral and written communications skills, advanced computer knowledge and a willingness to learn various PC platform software programs. Design software expertise desired. Knowledge of both print and electronic design is a must. Software experience should include Adobe InDesign, Photoshop and Illustrator. Please submit resume to: Charmaine.J.Leeks@nccourts.org

The Eric Breindel Memorial Foundation is now accepting applicants for the “2010 Eric Breindel Collegiate Journalism Award,” the nationwide undergraduate competition whose winning prize is unmatched by any institution in the country. The winner will receive a cash prize of $10,000, a paid internship of his/her choice at Fox News Channel, The Wall Street Journal or the New York Post. NY housing will also be provided. The award will go to the undergraduate student whose work best reflects the spirit of the writings by Eric Breindel: Love of country and its democratic institutions as well as the act of bearing witness to the evils of totalitarianism. For an application or questions, please contact Germaine Febles at (212) 843-8031 or gfebles@rubenstein.com or visit www.ericbreindel.org

The CBCF Emerging Leadership Program is now looking for spring interns. This is a semester long, paid internship. The CBCF will provide housing and a stipend. Interns will work four days on Capitol Hill, and on Fridays will attend educational seminars that focus on domestic and international issues, participate in leadership-training sessions and visit cultural and historical sites in Washington, D.C. These interns will also have the opportunity to participate in George Washington University’s Semester in Washington Program. For more information, please call (202)263-2800 or send and email to internships@cbcfinc.org and type “Emerging Leaders Internship Program” in the subject line. You can also pick up applications in the internship office.

Current TV is looking for Interns to work in Current’s Vanguard Journalism department in Los Angeles. Vanguard Journalism is Current’s marquee investigative journalism unit dedicated to reporting on global issues of relevance to Current’s young adult audience. This is a great opportunity to work with a team of journalists who are trying to bring a new edge, personality and importance to TV journalism for Current’s 18-34 year old target audience. Responsibilities include, but are not limited to: gathering archival images/video, assisting field crews on local shoots, assisting with preparing segments for broadcast. If you’re looking for a rewarding opportunity, a great work environment, please email your resume, cover letter and salary history to internships@current.com. Please include ‘Vanguard Journalism Internship - Summer 2009’ in the subject line of your email.

Washington Times is looking for interns. Send resume and cover letter indicating interest in department along with 5-10 samples of graphics, photos or stories depending on area of interest. Graphics portfolio should show work designed and produced. Reporting portfolio should include a variety of stories (feature, investigative, hard news). The deadline is Dec. 31, 2009. Please send above to Carleton Bryant, Assistant Managing Editor/Personnel/Special Projects, The Washington Times, 3600 New York Ave. NE, Washington, D.C. 20002. Contact Carleton Bryant at 202 636 3218 for more information.

WPCM Radio is seeking a sports intern to set up and announce high school football as well as coordinate PSAs and voice spots. Please call Byron Tucker 260-0177 for more information. http://www.920wpcm.com/

MD70 is a young, energetic branding and advertising agency in New York currently looking for a Production Intern. With a focus on fashion, beauty, luxury, art and lifestyle brands, we do everything from logo, packaging and website design to print advertising campaigns, media buying and new media initiatives. www.md70.com Internships to start ASAP.

FOR MORE INFORMATION:
Nagatha Tonkins, Director, Internships / External Relations
Elon University, 112 McEwen
cominternships@elon.edu, (336) 278-6336