SPORT ADMINISTRATION

University of Miami
School of Education / Department of Exercise & Sport Sciences
Assistant / Associate Professor

Position Description
The position is a nine-month tenure track position beginning August 15, 2010. The successful candidate will be primarily responsible for teaching graduate and/or undergraduate courses in Sport Communications. The candidate may also be called upon to develop and implement a new PhD program in Sport Administration. The candidate will also be required to teach other courses within the program curriculum as assigned. The candidate will be expected to establish and maintain an active line of scholarly research, seek external funding, and engage in service-related activities. The candidate must be student oriented and possess strong leadership skills conducive to sustaining and expanding a premier Sport Administration program.

Qualifications
- Earned doctorate in Sport Management, Sport Administration, or closely related field by date of hire.
- Ability to conduct and publish scholarly research along a systematic line of inquiry with a desired area of focus in Sport Communications. Of particular interest is the use of electronic and new media in sport (blogs, social networking, message boards, sport video games, cell phones and text messaging, and like technologies and forums).
- Demonstrated ability to provide quality instruction at the undergraduate and graduate levels and past experience serving as a mentor to PhD students.
- Ability to create and foster relationships with sport organizations in the local community.
- Must provide employment eligibility verification as required by the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services.

Salary
Salary is competitive and commensurate with qualifications.

Application Process
Interested candidates should forward a letter of application describing their teaching and research interests as well as any key sport industry related experience, curriculum vita, three letters of recommendation mailed by the authors, and official graduate transcripts to the following address:

Dr. Patrick T. Walsh, Ph.D.
University of Miami
P.O. Box 248065
Coral Gables, FL 33124-2040

Mitchell College
Assistant/Associate Professor

Mitchell College invites applications for an anticipated opening as an Assistant/Associate Professor in our Sport and Fitness Management Department within our expanding Physical Education concentration.

Mitchell College is a small, private liberal arts college, located in the small suburban city of New London, in southeastern Connecticut, along the scenic Thames River. Serving over 900 students from 30 states and 6 foreign countries, it is dedicated to providing a student-centered challenging education in a caring and supportive environment for all students, including those with varied academic abilities, untapped potential and learning differences for which we have achieved national prominence. It offers 3 associate degree programs and 14 baccalaureate degree programs.

RESPONSIBILITIES:
Teaching responsibilities include undergraduate courses in core areas of Physical Education and Fitness Management. Responsibilities would include teaching courses in Exercise Science, Motor Learning, Fitness, and other related courses, as well as assisting in curriculum development.

REQUIREMENTS:
Doctorate in Physical Education, Exercise Sciences or a related area is required; ABD considered. The successful candidate must possess a background in Physical Education/Movement Studies or related field with specific training in P.E. exercise science, motor development/learning and/or exercise physiology. Previous college level teaching and computer literacy preferred.

HOW TO APPLY:
Submit application materials including a cover letter, current vitae, and the names and contact information of three or more professional references that have direct experience with the candidate on one or more of the major qualifications required of the position to:
