

Curriculum and Curriculum Changes

A. Summary of Procedures for Curriculum Development and Curriculum Proposals

1. The chair of the department shall involve all department members in discussions regarding new courses or program proposals.
2. The chair, the department, and the respective dean of the school or college should work in concert in the development of curriculum changes and proposals.
3. The department chair, with support and documentation provided by the department and the dean of the school or college, may attend the meeting of curriculum committee when the proposal is discussed.
4. Curricular changes initiated by the academic departments and in consultation with the dean should be copied to the department dean, associate provost, and chair of the curriculum committee 14 days before the scheduled committee meetings.
5. The department chair, associate provost and the chair of the curriculum committee will confer and decide whether the proposal should be sent to an advisory subcommittee or be sent directly to the curriculum committee. A subcommittee might be warranted, for example, if the proposal substantively impacts another department or program. The department chair, the associate provost and the chair of the curriculum committee may also decide if minor changes (e.g., course number or title) need full committee review for approval.
6. If an advisory subcommittee is deemed necessary, the chair of the curriculum committee in cooperation with the chair of the initiating department will assemble a subcommittee consisting of the associate provost, the initiating department chair, the department's dean, and a minimum of 3 faculty members of the curriculum committee. After initial review, and within 30 days of the initial submission, the subcommittee will meet to discuss the proposal, formulate recommendations and either refer the proposal back to the initiating department for modification or forward it to the curriculum committee.
7. On approval by the curriculum committee, the proposal can be revised only to reflect catalog copy and submitted to the office of the provost for inclusion on the agenda of the following monthly faculty meeting for discussion and faculty vote.
8. For inclusion in the subsequent year's catalog, proposals should be approved by the March faculty meeting.
