

THE PENDULUM

Volume 32, Issue 3

September 7, 2006

www.elon.edu/pendulum

Elon University's Weekly Student Publication

"If it matters to you, it matters to The Pendulum."

Art takes different shapes, sizes

Kate Ferris/ Photo Editor
Statues across Alamance County, including the man playing the guitar on Elon's campus, (left) commemorate the 50 years the Alamance County Arts Council has dedicated to the arts.

Virginia Zint

Reporter

The life-size sculpture outside of Moseley Center is more than just a man playing a guitar; it's a symbol of the area.

The members of the Alamance County Arts Council commissioned artist J. Seward Johnson to create a unique series of statues to place around Alamance County to celebrate 50 years of promoting the arts.

In the county, there are a total of 20 sculptures, and each sculpture costs between $85,000 and $200,000. They have been placed around Alamance County since August, and they will be displayed until October. This collection, titled "Man on the Street," is of life-size sculptures of people in everyday life poses. Put simply, it is approachable, touchable art.

See STATUES p. 2

FEATURES

p. 15

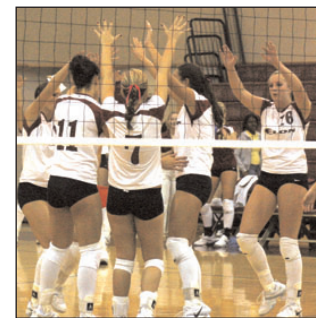

New religious worship service being offered this year.

ENTERTAINMENT

p. 18

New fall TV shows will take over students' lives.

SPORTS

p. 22

Volleyball team hosts tournament.