[RE]Gen New Media Festival

Call for Works
The [RE]Generative New Media Festival at Elon University invites the work of regional, national, and international artists across a wide variety of styles, contents, technologies, and lengths. A full-color print catalog will be published and distributed to all exhibiting artists. [RE]Generative is inspired by Elon’s mascot of the phoenix, the positive outcomes of our globally-focused, engaged learning curriculum, and the locally focused partnership to revitalize nearby historic Burlington, NC through arts and technology.

Exhibition
All work will be projected on a large screen in traditional cinema style at the historic Paramount Theater in downtown Burlington, North Carolina, close to Elon University’s campus. [RE]Gen is part of an innovative partnership between Elon’s Department of Art and Art History and Burlington Downtown, Inc.

Deadline - March 15, 2015

Entry
1. All entries must be in the form of a two-page PDF, emailed to art@elon.edu.
2. Two entries per person are allowed. Each segment or work should be a maximum of eight minutes. Shorter entries are also encouraged.
3. First Page, for each entry, include:
   • small video/animation still
   • link to stream the work on Vimeo, YouTube, or artist’s website
   • brief description of each work, medium, and any specs
   • online passwords for access
4. Second Page, for each entry, include:
   • one paragraph bio
   • one page artist statement
   • link to artist's cv or resume, including any academic/teaching affiliations

Eligibility
Open to any new media artist working in screen- and time-based work, including video art, experimental documentary, animation, computational art, or any single or multiple-channel work that may be viewed on a single large-scale screen. Artworks may be but need not necessarily be narrative.

Queries may be sent to Ann Pegelow Kaplan, Assistant Professor of Art, akaplan9@elon.edu
