Jason Lee, Executive Director

As Executive Director, Jason has doubled the Jubilee Project's subscriber base in the past year to over 100,000 subscribers worldwide and grown the channel to over 11 million views to date. He has written, directed, and produced over 20 creative short films on topics such as the Haiti Earthquake, bullying, autism, depression and more. Jason is an avid social entrepreneur, having worked and filmed in Zambia with the Clinton Foundation. Jason is a 2009 graduate of University of Pennsylvania Wharton School where he majored in finance and management. Before founding the Jubilee Project, Jason was a management consultant at Bain & Company.

Eddie Lee, Impact Director

As Impact Director, Eddie leads partnerships with social impact organizations and has brought on board partnerships with organizations such as Jeremy Lin Foundation, 18 Million Rising, Becky's Fund, and more. Eddie is passionate about the power of new media to impact social change and has produced films spotlighting community leaders and launched monthly social media campaigns. Before founding the Jubilee Project, Eddie worked as the State New Media Director for the U.S. Department of Education and as the AAPI Associate Director at the White House Office of Public Engagement. Eddie graduated from Harvard in 2010.

Eric Lu, Outreach Director

As Outreach Director, Eric is passionate about using creative stories that inspire and change the lives of young people. Eric has traveled to and spoken at over 20+ campuses in the past year on a college tour in the United States and internationally. Eric uses his medical background to make films on subjects such as HIV/AIDS, diabetes, and cancer. In July 2012, Eric took a leave of absence from Harvard Medical School to work on the Jubilee Project full time. Prior to working on the Jubilee Project, Eric founded an international leadership conference for youth in Taiwan and led a number of other student organizations.
